

The Peterchurch trail

Ted Hurrant of the Hereford Group of the Ramblers makes a fascinating companion on a walk in the Golden Valley

Peterchurch nestles in the Golden Valley, which get its name from a misinterpretation involving the Welsh word dwr meaning water and the French d'or – of gold. Rowland Vaughan, in the 16th century, had numerous irrigation channels dug out along the valley floor so that large areas could be irrigated and made more productive and prosperous. Peterchurch is a great centre for walks in the Golden Valley and the foothills of the Black Mountains so this moderate walk merely samples the possibilities on offer. It is named after St Peter and various unlikely legends try to link the saint with this corner of Herefordshire.

1 It is worth having a look in the church before starting your walk. There are two notable points of interest, the first, above the south door is a plaster-cast of a fish with a gold chain around its neck which supposedly lived in St Peter's well. Legend has it that St Peter consecrated the well and put in an immortal trout. The second interesting item is the altar which consists of a piece of stone from Arthur's Stone at Dorstone and which is believed to have been used as an altar for some 5000 years. Walk down the lane to the Boughton Arms on the B4348 road; proceed across the road taking the lane and footpath opposite. Follow the lane past Bazley Farm till meeting a stoned track, turn right. This then leads to a pretty sunken lane and on to St Peter's Well Cottage on your left. The wall plaque again shows the golden fish, as seen at the church.

2 Turn right and immediately go through the gate on the right. Follow the left hand hedge to arrive at St Peter's Well. It is an evocative sight, despite the presence of ugly fencing and a building. Stone steps descend into the mossy, ferny well which has provided Peterchurch with its water supply for centuries, if not millennia. The well was renovated in 2005 and it was then that the previously hidden steps were unearthed and the carved well head, which had been moved, was returned to its original position so that the spring water once again gushes from its mouth. Follow the hedge downhill to emerge over a stile turning right onto a stone track and then the road. Turn right at the road till reaching Wellbrook Manor on the right. At this point turn left onto a footpath, crossing the field diagonally right to a marker post then turn left up a sunken lane and at the top turn left over a stile. Keeping the fence on the left pass through a gate and after another 150 metres turn diagonally right to find a stile in top corner of field. Cross and keeping hedge on right, proceed through gate on this line until fence turns to the right. At this point carry ahead in the same direction passing a marker post, to cross an ancient slab stile (it is good that these items of heritage are kept in use today) and wooden stile in opposite hedge.

3 This is a crossroad of footpaths. Following in the same direction, keep the hedge to the left and go through some woodland to emerge into an enclosed track with two gates which have to be passed through. Continue with the hedge on the left, through another gate and follow the field edge to the right to cross a stile on the left, turn left and then turn right onto a stone track, ignoring the first right with the cattle grid. Keep following the stone track until it takes a turn right and then go straight on the bridleway along the edge of the wood. With the wood on the right, ignore any accesses into the wood until reaching a stile on the right.

4 Turn right over the stile into the wood and descend, ignoring all side paths to reach and cross stile at bottom of wood. Descend further slightly left to cross a footbridge at the bottom. A short sharp climb between the large trees will bring a stile into view just over the brow of the hill. Cross the stile and follow the bank on the right to another stile into the wood. Follow this well-defined path through the wood and into a meadow where a stile to the left of the house will be seen, cross and turn left onto a tarmac road. After a short distance on this road some buildings appear on the right and a stile on the left which is crossed (take care on this steep and possible slippery stile) and turn immediately right keeping the hedge on the left, descending until a stile on the right. Cross and turn right, then left on a way-marked path. Follow this well used path across Vowchurch common to reach some tarmac and then to a road.

5 Turn left to descend to the B4348 road. Take care crossing this road to ▶ take the minor road to Turnastone. Turnastone is an unusual name, as is Vowchurch; they both lie on opposite banks of the River Dore. A popular explanation is the twin churches were built by two rival sisters, one of whom said to the other: “I vow I will build my church before you can turnastone of yours”.

In Turnastone

The old village store in Turnastone

6 Just before the houses of the village turn left onto a track with a footpath sign, this was the old village centre. On the right is the old store and just past this turn right into Turnastone churchyard. Turn left out of the churchyard and follow the road passing another old store with old petrol pumps behind the garden wall till reaching Yew Tree House a large white building where the road turns sharp left. The route now goes straight ahead and follows the well marked Herefordshire Trail back to Peterchurch. The Herefordshire Trail is a circular walk of about 154 miles, all within the County of Herefordshire, visiting all of the market towns and some delightful villages. The route was devised by a small group of members of the Hereford Group of the Ramblers, using public rights of way and, where possible, public transport links. The Trail starts from the Market House in Ledbury and visits Ross-on-Wye, Kilpeck, Pontrilas, Peterchurch, Whitney-on-Wye, Eardisley, Kington, Lingen, Brampton Bryan, Leintwardine, Richard's Castle, Leominster, Bromyard, Bishop's Frome and Bosbury and all the scenic countryside in between. The trail logo designed by a pupil of Wigmore High School, whose clever design of the apple tree in the shape of the county showing the market towns as apples, won a competition. This design way-marks the Trail throughout the county. Copies of the Trail book can be purchased locally in Tourist Information Centres, bookshops or ring 01432 264374.

7 The bridleway keeps the hedge and stream on the right through six fields till reaching a ford and footbridge. Cross the stream and the stile on the right and pass to the left of the fir trees ahead to find a stile on the same line. The church and its fibreglass spire can be seen for some distance approaching Peterchurch. A story is told of the vicar who became annoyed by the noise of low-flying jets screaming up and down the Golden Valley. When it was realised the low-flying activities would be terminated should there be a tall spire in the area, fund-raising for a new spire really took-off! Ironically, the new spire was lifted into position by helicopter in 1972. Cross the stile and follow the path out onto a lane turn right over a bridge and turn left onto a footpath till reaching the B4348. Turn left after about 250 metres take a footpath to the left by the police station. This leads through the churchyard to the cars. ■
